

A method of manufacture, which in one implementation includes but is not limited to forming at least one electromagnetic shield and at least one antenna in substantial electrical current communication (e.g., 102). A system, which in one implementation includes but is not limited to at least one electromagnetic shield and at least one antenna formed in substantial electrical current communication (e.g., 304, 308).